Spatial Element

Silk Metallics is the latest dazzling offering from this specialist in sculpted fabrics. The mix of silk and metallic threads creates a shimmering display, perfect for drapes or wall coverings. It is 44 inches wide and comes in blues, greens, and reds, as well as shades of gold, copper, and silver. 917-701-9134; spatialelement.com. circle 470

Pollack

Get your texture fix from this trio. Eddy, a 121-inch-wide reversible window fabric in sheer polyester, offers a tone-on-tone subtlety with two different, colored filling yarns. And thanks to traditional fancy-twist yarn, Astrakhan evokes its namesake, Persian lamb fur, in look and feel. Flaximum, meanwhile, is a dobby weave linen with a sprightly, visual texture. Each is available in three to eight colorways. 212-627-7766; pollackassociates.com. circle 469

John Hutton

Release your inner Drama Queen! This shimmering blend of viscose, polyester, linen, and cotton expands the appropriately dubbed Bling collection with four iridescent colorways in a heavier texture. Get your sparkle on in white gold, platinum, pewter, or aged copper. 888-787-7827; johnhuttontextiles.com. circle 468

Kinnasand

Get a Close Up look at this German design house's spring collection. The line is all about sensuality in textiles, in which pastels and naturals rub shoulders with more lush contrasting shades. And the critics are impressed: The metallic textiles group garnered a 2008 Red Dot Product Design Award for design. 49-04-488-5160; kinnasand.com. circle 466

Paul Brayton

We can hear steel drums while gazing at Calypso. This playful sunburst design comes in eight happy colorways. The nylon-rayon blend can take 60,000 double rubs. And thanks to Crypton, it can withstand moisture and microbes, making it perfect for health-care settings. 800-882-4720; paulbraytondesigns.com. circle 467
